19 / Near Banff

By Henry George Glyde
10.25" x 14.5" Watercolour
1957

Throughout his long career as an artist and teacher in Calgary, Banff, and Edmonton, English-born Henry G. Glyde was integral to the development of art in Alberta since 1935. Glyde promoted the development of a distinctive view of Western Canada based on direct observation and interaction with the landscape and its people. Following a major retrospective exhibition at the Glenbow Museum in 1987, the estate of H.G. Glyde donated a collection of 573 works to Glenbow in 1998, representing the enormous legacy of the artist's work in this region.

Mt. Cathedral from Lake O'Hara

By Walter Joseph Phillips
7" x 8.625" Woodblock on Goyu paper
1927, Ed. 55/250

Walter J. Phillips was a printmaker and painter from the 1930s to the 1950s, who played a seminal role in the development of visual arts programs at Banff Centre for Arts and Creativity.

Mt. Cathedral from Lake O'Hara is the first print in the portfolio Ten Canadian Colour Woodcuts which Phillips issued in 1927. In Phillip's own words, the image depicts the "towering blue mass of Cathedral Mountain against a citrine sky through which the sun had lately passed, from the stoop of the C.P.R. chalet at dinner-time."

32 / Solid like Stone, Short like History

By Nicole Kelly Westman
43" x 34.5" Medium Format
Chromogenic Photograph
2014

Nicole Kelly Westman is a Calgary-based artist of Métis and Icelandic descent. Westman’s research-based practice involves significant historical investigation into local sites once booming with industry or mining. Solid like Stone, Short like History depicts a large boulder of dolomite seemingly left on the side of the road in a community in the Northwest Territories. Westman has exhibited across Canada, including in the Art Gallery of Alberta and Access Gallery in Vancouver, and her Banff Centre exhibition, Rose, Dear, was chosen by Canadian Art Magazine as one of the top exhibitions of 2016.

33 / Not a Line, But a Poem

By Eunice Luk
24" x 18" Silkscreen on paper
2014

Eunice Luk is a Toronto-based artist whose work spans various materials, from screen printing and ceramics to poetry and wearable objects. Often, the artist will produce a work in one medium and rethink it in another form as a second work. As the title of the work suggests, a line becomes a poem, or a poem becomes a ceramic, an installation, a drawing, or a feeling. An emerging artist, Luk has exhibited at numerous galleries in Toronto, Printed Matter in New York, and Banff Centre for Arts and Creativity. Luk recently completed the Kohanecho Artist-in-Residence program in Yokohama, Japan and heads the Canadian independent publisher Slow Editions.

34 / Untitled

By Shawn Evans
Oil on Canvas
2016

Shawn Evans’s dedicated painting practice is one of deconstructing images of architectural interiors and exteriors onto a flat image plane. The layered spaces he depicts are often derived from the omnipresent and banal urban landscapes of our daily experiences. The transparency of the layers in his work reflects the permeability of public and private spaces. Represented by Barbara Edwards Contemporary, Evans is a graduate of the Alberta College of Art + Design, an alumnus of Banff Centre, and his work contributes to the permanent collections of various institutions, including that of Jim and Susan Hill (The Esker Foundation).

36 / A Commissioned Tondo of Your Choosing

By Chris Cran
16" Tondo Acrylic on Board

Considered one of Canada's most notable contemporary artists, Chris Cran is renowned for his humorous and inventive takes on traditional genres such as still life, portraiture, landscape, and abstraction. A Banff Centre alumnus, Cran's exhibit, Sincerely Yours, is currently showcased in Ottawa's National Gallery of Canada.

Cran will create a 16" tondo artwork containing the subject matter of your choosing, acting as extension of his renowned Chorus Series. The intent is to have them placed next to other works of art and thereby to comment on what they gaze upon, like the Greek Chorus from which the series is named.

By Barry Weiss
31.5" x 31.5" Oil on linen

Through technical exploration with brush and blade, Weiss exhibits a contemporary understanding of a 19th century light in his textural and atmospheric oil paintings. Undertones of romanticism float to the surface of a body of work that sweeps easily across representational and abstract interpretations of nature and landscape.

65 / Colonel Chris Hadfield Signed Canvas Art

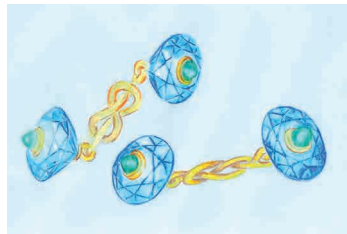

By Colonel Chris Hadfield
25.5" x 37.5" Canvas print
Limited edition

Taken while commanding the International Space Station, Col. Chris Hadfield's photos from Earth's orbit are inspiring works of art. This canvas print is one of a very few that been signed by Col. Hadfield, depicting the Richat Structure in the Sahara desert of Mauritania. The structure has attracted attention since the earliest space missions because it forms a conspicuous bull's-eye in the otherwise rather featureless expanse of the desert. Described by some as looking like an outsized fossil in the desert, the structure has a diameter of almost 30 miles and has become a landmark for shuttle crews.
